eCameron has been selected to perform the technology services for a startup out of Chicago dealing in age management. This will bring the design, development, deployment, and management functions for Ageology, LLC, Chicago based company, to the Vancouver-Portland Metro area. In the next few months, eCameron will select and manage the development company from a short-list of five vendors.

Dr. Paul Savage, MD FAAFM is the brainchild behind the concept of a cloud-based solution for the cash-based physician industry. These are small businesses that need a total solution to run their office. "We are out to change our current practice of disease care and make it real health care," says Dr. Savage. "We see that starting with physicians that can spend quality time with their patients. We chose eCameron, not for their project rescue track record, but their ability to keep us away from those common failures."

"This will be nice business for the area and Goal #1 of the recently published Clark County Economic Development Plan. The total spend in the area over the course of the contract will be into 7-figures," says Todd Williams, President of eCameron. "That will be in services we provide, development services from our development partner, and other ancillary needs as the project progresses." Since the relationship will include follow-on maintenance of the system, this is not a one-off affair, this is a long lasting partnership.

Contracts formalizing this transaction were signed in November, 2011 and the development contract will be signed at the commencement of Phase 2 of the project. The recent launch of the Ageology website (<http://www.ageology.com>) and being in the final round of the selecting the development partner, made it excellent time to announce the contract.
